

The diagrams show a cell in metaphase and anaphase. In metaphase, chromosomes are aligned at the equator. In anaphase, sister chromatids have separated and are moving toward opposite poles. Labels include 'metaphase' and 'anaphase' written vertically next to their respective diagrams.

